District 4 Commission Report
November 9, 2026
Rhea Brown and Suzanne Sadowsky

Supervisor Rodoni held a West Marin El Niño Town Hall in Pt Reyes Station 10/27/26 re preparedness for the anticipated storms and flooding this winter. He has also been meeting with those affected by the Lucky Drive flooding from last January in Corte Madera.

State Budget has delivered $19.75 million for Marin housing, agriculture, and community infrastructure.
-supporting affordable housing like the Bolinas Land Trust project and the West Marin Community Services to help families access essential services.
-A permanent farmers market center for food and agriculture at the Civic Center site. Will provide site for education, economic development and community gathering.
-Money for the new Stinson Beach firehouse.
-money to help restore Mount Tamalpais Cemetery which has been abandoned by its owner who stole the funds for all maintenance in a major statewide lawsuit. This effort is in preparation for being able to sell to a new owner.

The County took an important step toward expanding economic opportunities for micro-businesses in Marin. The Board of Supervisors passed an ordinance to establish a three-year pilot program allowing residents to prepare and sell meals from permitted home kitchens. Known as Microenterprise Home Kitchen Operations (MEHKOs), the program would provide a more affordable pathway for aspiring food entrepreneurs to start small businesses without the significant expense of opening a traditional restaurant or commercial kitchen. Under state law, permitted operators could prepare up to 30 meals per day and 90 meals per week, with annual gross sales limited to $100,000. This program could be particularly valuable in West Marin and communities like the Canal, where access to affordable commercial kitchens and business startup resources can be limited. The proposed pilot would allow up to 100 permits countywide, with 30 percent of initial permits reserved for applicants from communities facing greater economic and health-related disadvantages.

The county has unveiled two new mobile offices that are scheduling weekly visits to coastal and rural communities throughout the District 4 geographic area. One outreach van is from Health and Human Services and the second is a mobile library, the BiblioCoaster. These new vehicles will better serve the needs of West Marin residents who need to travel long distances for essential services. Supervisor Rodoni and Dr. Lisa Warhaus made presentations at the inaugural event on October 27th at the Dance Palace that Commissioner Sadowsky attended.

Supervisor Rodoni has been scheduling Town Hall-type Zoom meetings in communities throughout the District. An important focus of these meetings has been on safety concerns and emergency response during winter storm season.
