

Marin County is updating its septic regulations (LAMP) and wants to hear from you.

You are invited to attend a community meeting to share feedback about what is working, what may be confusing, and what challenges you may be experiencing with septic systems and related regulations. Participants will also have an opportunity to ask questions, learn about the goals and timeline for the updates, and provide recommendations for improving current regulations.

Why This Matters

Septic systems affect public health, water quality, and housing and development across Marin.
